We arrived on Sunday night, when there were few campers; we each argued in the corner. Site 55 is eclipsed by most of the park and is located in Jone Pond. It would be a particularly nice place if you had a kayak or a canoe, but we enjo ... more Access space cleanliness site quality noise AT&T 4G/LTE Verizon 4G/LTE This review is a member of Campendium, not Campendium.com Overview 7/24/2018 Night course: $27 days left: 3 Site number: 63 We spent three days here and overall had a good experience. The site is quite large, so it's pretty nice. There are only electrical sites, so if you dump regularly you can find yourself using the facilities. If you throw them around any shore that the wind is blown and there is any brush whatsoever, preferably one near or on the point, you should limit decent crappies pretty quickly. Throw out outside the structure and let the wind bring your slip bobber platform over or just into the structure (play with the depth of the slip so that you do not snag) and you should get strikes as it approaches the structure. Anything is going on there lately? Still looking for good places and methods of shore fishing evergreen. I still have success. So... I just came home from Evergeen and to my frustration I saw the gate below the spill still open. I am a little disappointed that the park staff did not close it completely... He went fishing on Sunday. Quite windy and the water was mudddddddy. Just caught a few. 15 feet of water. Bite slowed down many Comlara Park employees supported the spill. I looked there about 8 a.m. on Tuesday night. All the dead musketeers who floated and hung on the fence Sunday morning disappeared and the gates seemed to close to me, so I think the maintenance crew was there at some point. Anyone know if the gate was completely closed below the spill? As of Tuesday evening, he was still open about the bottom leg, allowing the fish to swim downstream. Is the county responsible for maintaining it? Thanks. Will try this weekend. Nasty orange or chart 1/8 jig heads with 3 gulp shadows or chart color along weed edges of about 10 water. Also troll Walli Divers, Jr. Thunder Sticks, or Wiggle Warts on apartments and through the main lake points. You line and speed just right to where your elbows are just ticking at the bottom. This will help you to the eye limit. Success!!
